HER ROYAL HIGHNESS PRINCESS BAJRAKITIYABHA MAHIDOL Thailand's royal diplomat, lawyer, advocate

RH Princess Bajrakitiyabha is the oldest child of King Maha Vajiralongkorn Bodindradebayavarangkun and Princess Soamsawali and the first grandchild of the late King Bhumibol Adulyadej and Queen Sirikit.

HRH had served at the Permanent Mission of Thailand to the United Nations in New York, covering various issues of the Third and Sixth Committees of the General Assembly. Her Royal Highness's involvement in the work of the 60th General Assembly highlighted her genuine interest in the nexus between legal affairs and reform and multilateral diplomacy.

In 2008, she was appointed a goodwill ambassador in Thailand for the U.N. Development Fund for Women. She also founded another prison project: Enhancing Lives of Female Inmates. In 2010, at the 65th U.N. General Assembly, her work with ELFI contributed to the adoption of the U.N.'s Rules for the Treatment of Women Prisoners and Non-custodial Measures for Women Offenders, known as the "Bangkok Rules," which supplemented U.N. regulations for prisoners dating from 1955.

From 2012 to 2014, Her Royal Highness served as Thailand's Ambassador to Austria and Permanent Representative of Thailand to the United Nations at Vienna, where she chaired sessions of UNODC's governing bodies the Commission on Narcotic Drugs, and the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, which are part of the Economic and Social Council of the UN General Assembly.

In February 2017, The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime appointed Her Royal Highness Princess Bajrakitiyabha Mahidol of Thailand as Goodwill Ambassador on the Rule of Law for Southeast Asia. HRH brings a wealth of experience and engagement on issues related to crime prevention, criminal justice and the rule of law to her role as UNODC Goodwill Ambassador. Her Royal Highness has served for a number of years in the Office of the Attorney General of Thailand. She also serves as the Chairperson of the Special Advisory Board of then Thailand Institute of Justice, an agency that aims to promote excellence in research and training in the field of crime prevention and criminal justice domestically, regionally and internationally.

Her Royal Highness's interest in justice reform and the rule of law also has academic roots. She has studied criminal law, receiving a Doctor of Juridical Science (J.S.D.) Degree from Cornell University in May 2005, in which her dissertation focused on the protection of the rights of the accused. She also holds a Master of Laws (LL.M.) Degree from Cornell Law School and a Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.) Degree from Thammasat University. In addition to her legal studies, Her Royal Highness also received a Bachelor of Arts (B.A.) in International Relations from Sukhothai Thammathirat University.

In a more personal capacity, HRH founded the Princess Pa Foundation with her mother in 1995 to help victims of flooding and natural disasters and also initiated a royal project entitled "Kamlangjai" (support and encouragement) to support vulnerable groups who encounter the criminal justice system, including women in prison and pregnant inmates, and children born to inmates. Previously, she was elected Chairperson of the United Nations Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice at its 21st session (2011 - 2012).

Princess Bajrakitiyabha has expressed strong views on sustainability, as well as on the rule of law and its effect on development. "Long-term sustainable economic and social development and the establishment of a functioning, efficient, effective and humane criminal justice system have a positive influence on each other"

Message from His Excellency General Prayut Chan-o-cha (Ret.) Prime Minister of the Kingdom of Thailand

At present, women development and promotion receive widespread attention both nationally and internationally. It is because women represent an important sector that plays a vital role in the development and advancement of economies, society, and politics. Thailand recognizes that women's participation is a strategic imperative. Thai government has implemented many policies and plans to develop facilities and advance women's development in the social, economic and political spectrum. These ongoing initiatives provide a continuous flow of women's participation at all levels of the economy and are aligned with United Nations Sustainable Development Goals of raising the status of women nationally and globally.

The Federation of Business and Professional Women's Association of Thailand Under the Royal Patronage of Her Majesty The Queen (BPW Thailand) is part of a leading global network of business and professional women that plays an important role in empowering and inspiring women to develop their professional and leadership potential as well as contribute to social development. This is done so that business and professional women would realize their responsibility in using their knowledge to benefit the common goods at national and international levels, to improve status of women and to honor women who serve as role models. These role models are either women who achieve success through their perserverance or influential women leaders who guide and inspire other women on the ways to manage their businesses.

On this occasion, I applaud and congratulate BPW Thailand on being selected the host of BPW International Asia Pacific Regional Conference 2018 during October 30 – November 1, 2018 at the Grand Hyatt Erawan Bangkok.

Finally, I would like to wish you a successful conference. I wish this conference would inspire and encourage Thai women and all other women in the world to realize their roles to continue to contribute to the societies and their countries

General Land Olad

(Ret.)

(Prayut Chan-o-cha)
Prime Minister of the Kingdom of Thailand

H.E. Mr. Weerasak Kowsurat Minister of Tourism and Sports

Empowering Women to Realize Sustainable Development Goals

I would like to first convey my heartfelt congratulations to the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Associations of Thailand for their efforts in conceptualizing the BPW International Asia-Pacific Regional Conference 2018 in Bangkok to promote and demonstrate their commitment to the issue of women's rights and gender equality.

In 2015, more than 150 world leaders agreed on the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, with 17 global goals known as the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Women's equality and empowerment is one of them, and they are vital to all dimensions of sustainable development. Women play key roles in regards to economic wealth and their involvement in the economy leads to a better quality of life for families and communities.

As for the cultural sphere, women are inspiring creators and consumers of culture, and they should be able to play an equal role. As part of the 20-year national strategy, the Ministry of Culture implements cultural policies that promote gender equality in culture with the objective for women to reach their full potential as productive members of society side by side with men as well as to make progress towards empowerment and equality for all.

I hope that this distinguished conference will contribute to build the best understanding of strategic ways forward to ensure women's empowerment and gender equality in our society. Thank you very much.

H.E. Mr. Vira Rojpojchanarat Minister of Culture, Thailand

Message From Police General Adul Sangsingkeo Minister of Labour

Today's generation of women become empowered globally. They are increasingly playing a crucial role particularly in the workforce rendering in higher growth and advance in economy as well as national development. Notably, Thailand ranks among the countries that provide the greatest opportunities for women in the workforce and as entrepreneurs. 16.89 million out of 37.79 million Thai workforce are female. Since 1995, the status of women in Thailand has developed significantly, resulting in more women in the workforce and promotion of equality opportunity. As the country's gap of social and sexual disparities is well decreasing, an increase in female labour force participation benefits from current favourable social phenomenoa, including feminist movements, equal opportunity legislation, increasing access to education, broader range of new career sectors and evergrowing digital economy. Yet they are the most vulnerable of the workforce to labour rights violation.

The Ministry of Labour, as the national labour administration organisation, is thereupon seriously take steps to oversee labour protection, promote skill development, provide job opportunity and ensure that workers regardless of their nationality, race and sex are equally access to decent work. In response to the 20-year-National Strategic Plan (2017 - 2036) and the 12th National and Economic Development Plan (2017 - 2021), we are attempting to secure the promotion of labour rights throughout the cycle, beginning from human resource development in order that labour force is equipped with skills that match with labour market demand and in line with Thailand 4.0 Policy, access to equal opportunity and labour right protection to promotion of competitiveness of labour force in regional and global economy.

To assure that women can live independently with dignity, the Ministry of Labour supplementarily, at international level, ratified the ILO Convention 111 on Discrimination (Employment and Occupation), 1958 to promote women engagement, non-discrimination on occupation, opportunities for skills development and career advancement. At national level, promotion of skills training for those involved in MSMEs is pushed forward to enhance female competitive capabilities. Moreover, the Outstanding Women Awards has been established to honour female workers, raising awareness of Thai society to realise the importance of working women.

Each and every single effort is to assure no one being left behind, labour rights protection living up to meet international standards as well as sustainable development being accomplished.

On the occasion of the BPW International Asia Pacific Regional Conference 2018 during 30 October – 1 November 2018 at the Grand Hyatt Erawan Bangkok, I would like to congratulate the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Association of Thailand under the Royal Patronage of Her Majesty the Queen (BPW Thailand) on being selected to host the above mentioned Conference. The BPW Thailand is part of a leading global network of business and professional women to strengthen and develop women's professional and leadership potential to take on professional responsibility at all levels in the economy, politics and society, to support women empowerment and women's participation in various roles.

With the similar goals, I do believe that the Ministry of Labour in cooperation with BPW Thailand can altogether empower and protect female workers' rights towards increasing credibility and sustainability of female workers' network nationwide and even across the region.

Last but not least, I extend my warmest best wishes for an overwhelming success of BPW International Asia Pacific Regional Conference 2018, as it will further strengthen the roles of women in society and build upon previous success.

Police General Adul Sangsingkeo Minister of Labour

Message From Dr Amany Asfour BPW International President 2017-2020

My very dear sisters of Regional Asia Pacific conference,

It is my real pleasure to join you in this great event with all our Affiliates from Asia Pacific region.

I would like to thank the host Federation BPW Thailand under the leadership of President Khunying Natthika Wattanavekin Angubolkul and would like to address an official thanks to Asia Pacific Regional Coordinator Dr. Narudee Kiengsiri. We would also address an official thanks to Their Royal Highnesses Princesses of Thailand for supporting this BPW Regional Congress.

As you all know that our theme for the Triennium is "Empowering Women to realize the Sustainable Development Goals". I have seen many great projects that your affiliates are engaged in and how they contribute to the Global Agenda: Ending poverty ,Zero hunger,Access to health,quality education and Gender Equality and Women Empowerment. All these SDGs are very relevant to all the objectives and Advocacy pillars of BPW International. These would include Women entrepreneurship, Women on Board, Women Financial Inclusion, Women Empowerment Principles, Government and Corporate Procurement Policies, Women and young Girls in STEM Education, Equal Pay and many other sectoral and special advocacy pillars.

I would really encourage you all to register your projects on the special link and also register your experise to have a special data base on our women experts in different fields.

I really wish you a great conference and as I always finish my speeches with an African Proverb: "If you want to go fast go alone and if we want to go far we go together."

We all have to unite and work for women empowerment and be inspired by our founder Dr Lena Madisen Phillips who started our organization in 1930 with a great vision of uniting the world in peace through women no matter colour, religion, language, race or ethnicity.

And so it is of crucial importance that we look for our BPW Sustainability and work together to have an impact on the daily life of our women across the world.

Dr Amany Asfour BPW International President 2017-2020

Welcome Address by Khunying Natthika Wattanavekin Angubolkul President, BPW Thailand Chairperson, Organizing Committee BPW International Asia-Pacific Regional Conference 2018

The Federation of Business and Professional Women's Associations of Thailand, under The Royal Patronage of Her Majesty The Queen, warmly welcomes each delegate and participant to BPW International Asia-Pacific Regional Conference 2018. It is our third hosting in twenty four years and we are proud to have you in our wonderful country for this auspicious event.

We have been greatly honored to have the presence of three eminent and beloved members of our royal family at this conference on three separate occasions: Her Royal Highness Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn, Her Royal Highness Princess Bajrakitiyabha Mahidol, and Her Royal Highness Princess Soamsawali. We are truly and profoundly grateful for Their Royal Highnesses' valuable support.

BPW International now has 95 affiliates world-wide working closely with the United Nations, various governments and international and national agencies. In Thailand, the initial 3 affiliates in 1973 have now grown to 21. This expansion -- an eloquent testimony of BPW's accomplishments and impact -- has mirrored the historic global paradigm shift with regards to the role of women in society.

Home to about two-thirds of the world's population, the Asia-Pacific region is one of the most dynamic and diversified in the world. This is well reflected in the many multi-nationals and brand-name products flourishing in our region. Nevertheless, in certain localities poverty, lack of education, economic instability, gender inequality, environmental issues and other major challenges have prevented our region from reaching its full development and transformation. Indeed, we view these challenges as catalysts upon which we can strengthen our vision and our networking so that they become opportunities whereby we can shape a common future that is inclusive, equitable and flourishing.

This is a vibrant gathering of some 450 women from 38 countries who are powerful achievers, leaders and influencers who know that success is born from dreams that go hand in hand with determination and hard work. They have successfully shown the world that women can excel and become integral and indispensable contributors to progress. Of a certainty, a new woman has emerged from the constraints of the past. She knows that her unique character traits as a woman are part of her strength, and were never her weakness. She is strong, brave, and confident. She is an achiever and a leader. She can not only walk, but she can run and fly! From this position of strength, let us synergize our efforts and present to the world the unique contributions we alone, as BPW women, can bring to the table.

Our conference theme is "Empowering Women to Realize Sustainable Development Goals". This we can surely achieve by: E – Elevate self-worth and evaluate our progress; M – Motivation and good mindsets; P – Prioritize practical and sustainable solutions; O – Open channels for networking and community service; W – With dignity and devotion; E – Encourage our youth, for they will one day carry this torch after us; and R – in Righteousness and with reason.

This conference was made possible through the overwhelming support we have received from the government and private sectors. Of particular note, I would like to sincerely thank His Excellency Prime Minister of Thailand, General Prayut Chan-o-cha, the Deputy Prime-Minister, the Minister of Social Development and Human Security as well as his Permanent Secretary, the Minister of Tourism, the Minister of Culture and the Minister of Labour, the Permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Industry and many other high-ranking officials and government officers, for their most kind assistance. Our appreciation also goes to many individuals for their selfless contributions – not the least of which are the efforts of the board and members of BPW Thailand, and our world-renowned guest speakers.

I sincerely hope everyone will enjoy our warm hospitality and rich culture during your visit to this City of Angels and the Land of Smiles. Thank you for joining us. It was Helen Keller who said, "Alone we can do so little; together we can do so much". There is a worldwide crusade of women uniting and fighting with their best weapon: success that has proven that inclusive opportunities for women equal forward progress. Together we can forge ahead towards attainable and sustainable world peace, harmony and prosperity. The growth and development of people is the mandate of leadership. It is the greatest sign of true success and it is our lasting legacy to future generations.

he International Federation of Business and Professional Women (BPW International) was founded by Dr. Lena Madesin Phillips in 1930. BPW International is one of the most influential international networks of business and professional women with affiliates in about 100 countries in five continents. Its members include influential women leaders, entrepreneurs, business owners, executives, professionals and young business and professional women.

Mission: BPW develops the professional, business and leadership potential of women through skill building, networking advocacy, mentoring around the world.

Aim: To develop professional and leadership potentials for women at all level.

UN Connection: The root of BPW's advocacy is embedded in the work with the United Nations. BPW lobbied for the formation of the Commission on the Status of Women (CSW) and supported many women's issues. BPW was awarded a Peace Messenger Certificate from UN Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar in 1987. Esther Hymer, BPW representative at the UN, was the first Chair of NGO CSW committee and was named as one of three women playing a significant role in the work of the UN Commission by Secretary-General Kofi Annan in 1997.

Today, BPW continues its representation at UN Headquarters in New York, Vienna, Geneva; UN regional offices (UNECA, UNECE, UNESCAP, UNESCWA, UNECLAC); UNESCO, UNICEF, ILO, WHO, UNCTAD, UNIDO, FAO, UN DPI; Council of Europe; European Women's Lobby and continues to work closely with UN Women

A Brief History of BPW & UN Commission on Status of Women

by Dr. Chonchanok Viravan International President 2005-2008 & VP UN 2002-2005 for BPW International

"For half a century, as the representative of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women at the United Nations, you actively promoted the concerns of women. Your untiring efforts influenced almost all the resolutions of the General Assembly and its subsidiary bodies which affect the status of women."

Kofi Annan, Secretary-General of United Nations In a letter to Esther Hymer, IFBPW Representative to United Nations on her 100th Birthday in 1999.

hen I was a young BPW who went to New York to attend UN Commission on Status of Women (UN CSW) for the first time with then BPW International President Dr. Pat Harrison, I was in awe of the depth and breadth of women issues covered in UN sessions as well as hundreds of parallel sessions organized by NGOs in or around the United Nations Headquarter. There was no conference fee, but one must be a member of an Organization with Consultative Status to the United Nations, like International Federation of Business and Professional Women, in order to attend. Dr. Pat Harrison became my mentor on UN matters. In several years following, I attended UN CSW as delegate of Thai government twice and as recipient of a scholarship from Division on Advancement of Women once. I always brings a book "The Bus to 42nd Street" written by Past International Presidents Sylvia Perry and Livia Ricci to UN CSW with me to keep me inform and inspire.

BPW International Presidents and International Vice President for United Nations always promote BPW members to be involved in UN works. During 2002-2008 when I served BPW International Vice President for UN and later on as International President, I continued Dr. Pat work in promoting more BPW members to UN CSW. I learned more about BPW works with the UN through BPW permanent representatives and by attending the meetings myself. By 2008, over 200 BPW members attended UN CSW annually.

Yet, not many BPW members knew how deeply involved International Federation of Business and Professional Women is with the work of UN Commission on Status of Women since its conception. This brief history of BPW and UN CSW aims to enlighten people on how BPW contributed to the United Nations, especially through the leadership positions in the United Nations and in NGO-CSW in New York and Vienna.

IFBPW was among the first group of NGOs to gain consultative status with the UN Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) in 1947. This happened because of the foresight of Esther Hymer (1898 – 2001) who attended the founding of the United Nations and ceased the opportunities to influencing or influenced depending on other word queried the policies of the newly formed United Nations. IFBPW applied for Consultative Status with the UN ECOSOC in 1945.

When the Commission on the Status of Women (CSW) was founded in June 1946, the Commission's mandate was to "prepare recommendations and reports to the Economic and Social Council on promoting women's rights in political, economic, civil, social and educational fields" and to make recommendations "on urgent problems requiring immediate attention in the field of women's rights."

The Commission forged a close relationship with non-governmental organizations in consultative status with ECOSOC were invited to participate as observers. This, of course, includes IFBPW.

1950s

IFBPW voices began to be heard at the UN CSW through written statements by Esther Hymer IFBPW Representative to UN.

1960s

The Commission focused on promoting the participation of women in Development.

Helvi Sipilä (1915-2009), a representative from Finland as well as member of BPW Finland, served in the United Nations CSW as its Vice-Chairperson and Chairperson (the post she held until early 1970s). In 1968, she was nominated as Special Rapporteur for the Status of Women and Family Planning project and launched numerous studies on this subject.

1970s

This is the Golden Decade for IFBPW in working with the United Nations. IFBPW played important roles at both the International Women's Year and the First Women World Conference in Mexico.

Helvi Sipilä became the first woman to be appointed Assistant Secretary-General in 1972. She also served as the Secretary-General for the First World Conference on Women held in Mexico City in 1975. The CSW served as secretariat to organize this conference. In her opening statement she expressed her hope that it would set a precedent for equal representation of women and men in all future international meetings, whether on political or economic affairs, on disarmament, trade or human settlement.

Esther Hymer became the first chair of NGO Committee on Status of Women New York (NGO CSW New York) in 1972. On behalf of IFBPW, Esther, along with others, called for an International Women's Year in 1975. She was also elected chairperson of the NGO Committee of the International Women's Year in 1975, a post she held from 1972-1982.

As a follow up to a recommendation from the first Women World Conference, United Nations declared 1976-1985 the United Nations Decade for Women: Equality, Development and Peace. Esther was appointed Chair for the Decade for Women, a post she held from 1976-1985.

In this Decade of Women, the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) was drafted by the Commission and adopted by the General Assembly in 1979. The NGO Committee on Status of Women Geneva (NGO CSW Geneva) was founded in 1973 (initially it was formed as a sub-committee).

1980s

The Second Women World Conference was held in Copenhagen in 1980. The Third Women World Conference was held in Nairobi in 1985 to Review and Appraise the Achievements of the UN Decade for Women. The CSW served as secretariat to organize both conferences.

During the Decade of Women, three more UN entities working on Women's issues were established: The Division for the Advancement of Women (DAW), The United Nations Fund for Women (UNIFEM) and the International Research and Training Institute for the Advancement of Women (INSTRAW).

Helvi Sipilä was instrumental in the founding of UNIFEM, then known as the United Nations Voluntary Fund for the Advancement of Women.

Claire Fulcher, IFBPW representative to the United Nations who was trained personally by Esther Hymer, was also the founding convener of the NGO Committee on UNIFEM, where she served until 1994.

In 1982, the NGO Committee on Status of Women Vienna (NGO CSW Vienna) was founded. In its first four years, Marlene Parenzan, a member of BPW Austria, served as Vice Chair of Vienna NGO Committee on Status of Women, though she was then representing World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts (WAGGG).

During 1986-1991 Marlene Parenzan became Chair of Vienna NGO Committee on Status of Women for two consecutive terms from 1986-1991. Division on Advancement of Women (DAW) was still based in Vienna. She worked on organizing the first NGO consultations prior and/or parallel to meetings of the CSW. She met and worked with Esther Hymer who attended most CSW meetings then. As preparations for the Fourth World Conference on Women in Beijing in 1995 started at DAW in Vienna, she has the honor of serving as NGO-Co-ordinator to accompany the UN delegation to Beijing and discuss NGO participation with the Chinese hosts following intensive contacts with the Mission here in Vienna. Her work as NGO co-ordinator for the Planning Committee ended when the CSW moved to New York in 1993.

In 1987, Esther Hymer accepted the "Peace Messenger" certificate from UN Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar in 1987 on behalf of IFBPW in recognition of a significant contribution to the programme and the objectives of the International Year of Peace.

The Commission and its secretariat led the preparation of the Fourth Women World Conference, which was held in Beijing, China in September 1995. It coordinated the negotiations on the draft Beijing Platform for Action in a very participatory and comprehensive manner, including five regional preparatory meetings in 1994 and several NGO meetings.

Helvi Sipilä and the then BPW International President Livia Ricci, Yvette Swan, Immediate Past BPW International President, Sylvia Perry, Regional Coordinator Europe, Pat Harrison, Regional Coordinator Asia Pacific, Claire Fulcher, and many other BPW members were among the approximately 30,000 individuals who attended the independent NGO Forum 1995 held in Huairou, 50 miles from the main UN Conference in Beijing.

In 1996, Claire Fulcher founded the NGO Committee on Mental Health (New York).

In 1997, Esther Hymer was named as one of three women playing a significant role in the work of the UN Commission by UN Secretary-General Kofi Annan. In thanking her for her contribution he said,

"Still active in promoting women's equality, Mrs Hymer represents the best tradition of NGO activism in the United Nations."

This was the same year that the Office of the Special Adviser to the Secretary-General on Gender Issues and Advancement of Women (OSAGI) was established.

BPW International Presidents and Vice Presidents for UN began to attract more BPW members to attending CSW, even when they were not the official IFBPW representatives to United Nations

2000-2010

In 2002, Eva Richter joined BPW New York and under the guidance of Claire Fulcher, became IFBPW representative at the UN in 2003. In 2008, Eva also recommended and guided Susan O'Malley to become IFBPW representative at the UN in New York. Susan later on became the current Chair of NGO-CSW New York.

Marlene Parenzan, IFBPW Representative to UN Vienna and member of BPW Austria, was again elected to serve as Chair of NGO CSW Vienna (VNGOCSW) during 2009-2011. Besides business as usual and attending the CSW in NY, she actively participated in the Global Conference on AIDS and the Conferences on Gender Medicine, spoke at the Civil Society Forum about "Women and Education for Leadership" and organized celebrations for "100 Years of International Women's Day".

In 2008 Claire Fulcher was honored in 2008 for 20 years of work and as the founding member and convener of the NGO Committee of UNIFEM 1988-1994.

Through the promotion by BPW International Presidents and Vice Presidents for UN and (then) the flexible UN regulation that allowed unlimited number of members of NGOs to participate at UN CSW, the total number of BPW members world-wide who attended the annual UN CSW grew from less than 20 to over 240 persons. They have enjoyed attending hundreds of side-events organized by governments and/or NGOs and later also organized workshops both inside and outside the UN Headquarters in New York. Other BPW activities were organized for those who came to UN CSW including the BPW dinner (which later was named "Claire Fulcher Dinner") and the BPW Leaders' Summit.

At regional level, BPW members also participated in meetings to follow up on the Beijing Platform for Action such as Beijing+5 (year 2000), Beijing+10 (year 2005) and Beijing+15 (year 2010).

2011-present

In 2011, the four parts of the UN system (DAW, INSTRAW, OSAGI and UNIFEM) merged to become UN Women. UN Women is now the secretariat of the Commission on the Status of Women. In 2015, the Summit on Sustainable Development in New York agreed on the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) to be reached by 2030. Gender Equality was one of the 17 goals. In 2014, Eva Richter was honored for her UN work by BPW in 2014 and received the Esther W. Hymer Award in 2015 for her outstanding commitment and her contribution as Permanent UN Representative in New York during 2003-2014.

In June 2015, Susan O'Malley, IFBPW representative at the UN in New York, was elected as the 11th Chair of NGO CSW/New York. She was again re-elected in 2017 to serve for two more years. During her first two years, she increased the participation of BPW members, educated them more about issues at the UN and involved them in the Planning Committee for CSW and the monthly meetings on issues of importance on the empowerment of women. She helped working on establish NGO CSW in 5 regions of the world, parallel CSWs to Geneva, Vienna and New York. Through these CSWs, Advocacy training sessions were organized in the 5 global regions. Through her leadership, NGO CSW/New York published A Guide for NGOs and Women's Human Rights Activists at the UN and CSW, which has been translated into Spanish, French, Russian, and Arabic. Usage of technology to ease the access of information on hundreds of parallel events which made a debut for UN CSW 62nd session were highly appreciate by thousands of participants.

In this decade, United Nations has changed the regulations to limit NGOs participation to CSW to 20 persons per organization (D20), over a hundred BPW members still come to New York prior to and at the same time to organize and attend varieties of BPW side events as well as attending BPW Leaders' Summit.

Today BPW still continue to improve the status of women and continue to work closely with the United Nations and work partnership with many international organizations. Our 2017-2020 Triennium theme is "Empowering Women to realize the Sustainable Development Goals". Much more works remain to be done.

BPW THAILAND KEY PROJECTS AND PROGRAMS

The Association has organized many key activities, programs, projects and awards to honor women and improve status of women in business and professional dimensions. A Strong sense of commitment from our clubs, its member and our partners has enabled us to drive forward these important projects.

The Financial Discipline Program

Addressing a national growing concerned of an increase in the high level of household debts and an aging society population where most have insufficient funds for retirement, BPW Thailand, its member clubs and five leading organizations from the private and government sector signed an MOU to support, facilitate and champion the Financial Literacy Program to commemorate Her Majesty Queen Sirikit, Reign of King Rama IX of Thailand, on the occasion of her 84 th Birthday on August 12, 2016. These organizations are The Ministry of Social Development and Human Security, The Stock Exchange of Thailand, The Thai Chamber of Commerce, The Thai Bankers' Association and National Council for Child and Youth Development Under the Royal Patronage of HRH Princess Mahachakri Sirindhorn. The collaboration of these major parties during a 3 year timeframe has resulted in the participation of many pilot companies and has trained over 600 mentors. The success of this program has been immense and as a result, the six parties have agreed to extend the cooperation and implementation period into the next three years (2018-2021) in order to increase and expand the outreach into society.

Better Fabric, Better Women's Life BPW Power to Make a Difference - Excellent Projects Award 2017 from BPW International

For more than four decades, BPW Thailand has been preserving the cultural heritage art of Thai fabric which is aligned with the wishes of Her Majesty Queen Sirikit of King Rama 9:

- To preserve the art of Thai fabric weaving
- To continue to improve the fabric quality, design and marketability.
- To professionally develop fabric weaving careers for local women to financially sustain themselves.

BPW Thailand Member Clubs have been empowering women in their regions to financially sustain themselves in the trade by conducting training for local women to weave varieties of Thai fabric and introducing technology to create better fabrics and improve the quality and design. Our members help create demand by promoting the use of Thai fabrics through various campaigns and events to help ensure the preservation and sustainability of Thai fabric.

For the 15 th consecutive year, BPW Thailand has been involved in the vocational training, weaving and handicraft, education and self-esteem training to women inmates in Central Women Correctional Institutions. This project gives women inmates the chance to learn and develop new skills, to do small businesses and prepare themselves to re-enter society.

Promote Green Growth Strategy

The Federation of Business and Professional Women's Association of Thailand under the Patronage of Her Majesty the Queen (FBPW) is aware of the roles of women in environmentally-friendly business development. In 2014, with the support from United States Agency for International Development (USAID), BPW initiated the first award "The Best Outstanding Women Leaders for Green Growth Award". The effort and support grew in 2015 as BPW Thailand worked in alliance with USAID, the Ministry of Industry and Ministry of Social Development and Human Security. In 2016, the Award adopted a new title "Outstanding Women Leaders for Green Growth Award" and offered 10 awards to women leaders in private sector and the community. The 2018 Award was supported by UNDP and the Ministry of Social Development and Human Security. The significance of the award not only recognizes the efforts of visionary women entrepreneur, it also inspires other women leaders to integrate the concept of Green Growth Strategies and Environmental Conservation to their organizations.

ASEAN WOMEN ENTREPRENEURS NETWORK (AWEN)

The ASEAN Women Entrepreneurs' Network is a regional network of women 's organizations or coalitions of women's organizations, representing women in all economic sectors in the ASEAN Member States.

AWEN is a network of business women in the Southeast Asian Region, operating to exchange knowledge and experience; develop and propose initiatives to promote economic and trade activities in order to enhance gender equality, empower and strengthen entrepreneurship skills for women in ASEAN Community; create favorable environment for female-led enterprises and support for women entrepreneurship in the region. The Ministry of Social Development and Human Security has appointed BPW Thailand as the Official AWEN Focal Point and BPW Thailand has also been elected Chair of AWEN for 2018-2020. The Handover Ceremony took place in May 2018.

Thailand's Sufficiency Economy Principles & The SDGs

SEP at a Glance

The Sufficiency Economy Philosophy (SEP) is a decision-making framework that can guide us in living sustainably, using both knowledge and virtues. SEP is based on the principles of moderation, reasonableness and prudence. They translate into appropriate ways to solve problems or take action in different situations. SEP stresses balance in the use of economic, social, environmental and cultural capital, while underlining the importance of preparedness in dealing with changes in these four dimensions. Progress with balance promotes stability and, ultimately, provides a basis for sustainability. That can be as true for national development programs as for our own agenda in life.

m Development\ Bank}$  is a special financial institution under the supervision of the Ministry of Industry and the Ministry of Finance.

Our objective is to promote, assist and develop small and medium enterprises in the expansion and establishment of their businesses by providing financial assistance as well as in-depth field-specific expertise.

This is the second time that the SME Development Bank will be participating in the BPW International Asia Pacific Regional Conference. On behalf of SME Development Bank, I am honoured to be a part of this special occasion as I believe women are key contributors to national economic growth.

This is due to their perseverance and limitless potential to succeed.

As such, we have witnessed countless achievements and feats by women, in a number of different professional fields.

Needless to say, they are also crucial to the success of the welfare and prosperity of their family and society.

There are increasingly more and more women engaged in entrepreneurship and SME businesses in Thailand as well. For example, the souvenir bags we have prepared for this conference bear clear testimony to their abilities. It was designed by one of our clients - a hard working business woman who has been able to sustainably expand her business and contribute towards the social equality of her community in Amnat Charoen province. She has also created numerous job opportunities for people within her community, especially for the elderly and stay at home mothers.

In essence, SME Development Bank has stayed true to its name by developing the following 3 key concepts: develop, deliver and digital. We strive to implement these concepts in our every day work as tools to widen access to SME's across the nation.
